

Flexible Pathways: Action Steps

Traits of Pathways	Getting Started	Refining
Are the pathways at our school open and accessible to all students?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Highlight pathways in the program of studies and in school-home communications</li> <li>Eliminate prerequisites to pathways</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Examine data regarding pathways participation by all demographic groups</li> <li>Conduct focus groups to gauge student feelings about accessibility</li> </ul>
Are pathways integrated into our school program and culture ?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Recruit business and community organizations to offer student learning opportunities.</li> <li>Identify specific pathways director(s) for school/district.</li> <li>Collaboratively examine school schedules to maximize flexibility for student learning.</li> <li>Build collaborative time into teachers' schedules with the express task of creating flexible pathways for student learning in and out of school.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Publicly celebrate the variety of ways students learn. Host exhibitions, utilize social media, and communicate regularly with the community about the diversity of learning opportunities through pathways.</li> <li>Consider redefining roles and responsibilities to adequately support pathways.</li> <li>Collaborate with local districts to create and supervise pathways, sharing personnel costs.</li> </ul>
Are the pathways we offer flexible and varied ?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Connect with already established programs outside of school (ie: on-line, community college, apprenticeship courses) instead of building everything from scratch.</li> <li>Offer students independent study opportunities both within and beyond courses.</li> <li>Identify community events and programs already in place that could be connected to school curricula.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Initiate specific weeks/days for out-of-school learning to encourage student exploration of different pathways.</li> <li>Host student-facilitated community focus groups to identify potential pathways for student learning.</li> <li>Ensure a transparent process for students to propose pathways for themselves and the school.</li> </ul>

Flexible Pathways: Action Steps

Traits of Pathways	Getting Started	Refining
Are there opportunities for students to personalize their experiences?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Use layered teaching approaches or assessment menu options within courses to expand choice for students.</li> <li>• Expand curricular content choices to include a wider range of options for students to choose from.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Encourage students to consider learning standards and personally select content and demonstration methods to meet standards.</li> <li>• Utilize a wide range of technologies (digital and analog) for students to reach broader content and audiences.</li> </ul>
Do pathways result in equitable outcomes ? Are all pathways vehicles for rigorous, complex learning ?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Provide planning tools and documents to encourage teacher reflection on rigor in all learning experiences.</li> <li>• Establish school-wide expectations for outcomes for pathways; identify common data points for all pathways.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Train teachers and community members in common scoring guides to establish high quality student work.</li> <li>• Publicly report on pathways' progress in meeting outcomes.</li> </ul>
Do all pathways align to graduation standards and requirements ?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Map current courses and other learning experiences to graduation proficiencies.</li> <li>• Explore, through community forums or roundtables, the variety of ways students could meet graduation proficiencies.</li> <li>• Explicitly include connection to graduation proficiencies in any new pathways proposals.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Organize pathways by common proficiencies, not solely by topics, so students see connections and can move more flexibly between pathways.</li> <li>• Utilize student portfolios to collect evidence of proficiency from a wide range of learning experiences.</li> </ul>